KALAMAZOO, MI--(PR NEWSWIRE) —July 30 2007, - Manatron, Inc. (NASDAQ: MANA) the leading provider of property tax solutions for state and local governments announced today the implementation of its Manatron Ascend property tax solution in the Clay County, Missouri Tax Collector's Office. Clay joins Jackson County as the 2nd client running Manatron Ascend in the State of Missouri.

Clay County is located in western Missouri in the Kansas City metro area and has a population of over 200,000 with over 180,000 real property, business property and personal accounts. This project included conversion of data from the County's previous system, modification of reports to meet State standards, preparation of data interfaces to other County systems and training of County personnel.

"We chose Manatron in order to benefit from a highly functional system already proven in the State of Missouri from an experienced and stable vendor," said Clay County Tax Collector Sandra Reeves. "By utilizing Manatron Ascend we look forward to increased staff efficiency, more accurate and timely billing and improved distribution data for county districts. In addition, we eagerly anticipate benefiting the citizens of Clay County. Our taxpayers will now be able to print their own bills on a personal computer and after their payment has been processed, they will also be able to print their own receipts at home as long as they have Internet access. We look forward to working with Manatron for many years to come."

"We are pleased with the speedy implementation in Clay County.," said Manatron President and Chief Operating Officer, Bill McKinzie. "Working in partnership with the County, we were able to get them up and live on Ascend on time and within budget. They will be able to collect their 2007 tax bills on the new system which will make the process much more efficient and allow them to more effectively serve the tax payers of Clay County."
